

ABOUT BYGDØY

The Bygdøy peninsula is situated on the west side of Oslo's compact city centre, just 10-15 minutes from the City Hall.

It is a popular recreational area for locals and visitors alike, boasting beautiful landscapes with forests, livestock grazing in green fields, bicycle and walking lanes, beaches, historic buildings and several of Oslo's most popular museums. There are also many cafés you can visit.

The residential areas, which make up around 1/3 of the peninsula, are mainly characterized by villas with gardens.

Other sites of interest: Bygdø Royal Manor is a fully operational organic farm. Livestock graze the fields where the public walking and bicycling paths cross.

Oscarshall Royal Summer Palace is a wonderful example of 19th century Neo-Gothic architecture. The palace and park are open on select dates during summer.

You can also glimpse the Royal Summer Residence in use by the Royal Family.
